About

I am graduated in Modern Languages (English, French and Chinese) by the University Antonio de Nebrija of Madrid. I am also an examiner of official Cambridge English level exams and I have been an English teacher for almost three years in a language centre in Madrid. My teaching activity is complemented with courses in didactics such as the CELTA, the Practical Training Course for Specialist Teacher in Teaching Spanish as a Foreign Language or the OTA Teachers' Masterclass by Oxford University. I have certificates in English (C2) and French (B2), which I have been able to learn both in Spain as well as in their country of origin, since I lived for two years in England, doing the International Baccalaureate, and for five months in Geneva (in the francophone part of Switzerland). All this experience has led me to the following conclusion: the best way to learn a language consists on managing to make the experience memorable for the student.

I have also done volunteering for the British Red Cross as peer educator and for Helsinki España as a Human Rights and Sustainable Development Goals trainer. Besides, I was selected by the government to do an internship in the Department of Human Rights at the Spanish Embassy to the United Nations, which allowed me to deepen into diverse socio-political realities, since I collaborated in the Western European and Other Group (WEOG) and the 43rd Session of the Human Rights Council. It is for this reason I am also interested in the teaching of English through intercultural conflicts and the defense of the Human Rights.

Currently I am interested in teaching English and Spanish, translation, simultaneous and consecutive interpretations and computational linguistics.
